

A Peak in Darien

Because of the number of new folk music books and recordings now being produced in Canada, we do not promise to review everything we receive (although we do include everything in this listing). We give preference to the amount of significant Canadian traditional music content or connections, need for national distribution, and membership in CSTM, as well as our editors' and reviewers' preferences. These loose criteria also apply to our Mail Order Service. These criteria are not carved in stone; they're factors we take into account in deciding what to solicit, and what to try to have reviewed.

Edith: I soon began to realize that it was the Irish Catholics who had the songs. Peterborough is IRish, so is the Ottawa Valley. I tried among some of the Scots communities in western Ontario but had very little luck.

CFB: You mean they had no songs at all?

Edith: Very few—among the Protestants. I didn't find any Scottish songs until I got to Glengarry, where there are Scottish Catholics.
