Over the Waves

This is an occasional column (perhaps too occasional, lately...) dealing with folk music on the radio (maybe on TV too, if people want to write about that). It may be informational, with listing of times and stations of programs carrying folk music, or it may be opinion, with comments on the current state of broadcasting as it relates to folk music. Sometimes (most of the time, we hope!) it isn't written by us—readers are invited to air their views, or to let us know about programs in their regions.

"Uptown Bluegrass" is a syndicated radio show originating from Kamloops; their ad in Bluegrass Canada magazine caught my eye. Seems they've been on the air for 17 years in BC, and also can currently be heard Saturday evenings in Prince George, BC; Peace River, Alberta, and Winkler, Manitoba, and Saturday evenings in Altona, Steinbach and Boissevain, Manitoba. They are of course looking for bluegrass recordings, especially Canadian, to program. (With Canadian content regulations, and the underrepresentation of recordings by Canadian bluegrass bands—changing for the better, we hope!—Canadian bands are a good bet to get airplay!). You can reach them by mail at Uptown Bluegrass, PO Box 1372, Kamloops, BC V2C 6L7; phone them at (250) 573-2428; email them at <bluegrass@sage.ark.com>.

Alert readers may have heard some of Sheree King Gillcrist’s poems read on the CBC recently and wondered whether or not this is the same Gillcrist who has been a reviewer for the Bulletin for several years. The answer is yes. Sheree is now resident in Ireland, where she is "actively promoting" Canadian folk music. Her book of poems, Wandering Spirits And Restless Hearts, can be purchased for $20.00 from her at 81 Blackhall Square, North Brunswick Street, Dublin 7, Ireland. Among other titles, she recommends the following items to Bulletin readers: "Feminist Farmers Daughters," "Song of the Reel," "Home from the Hunt," "Spirits Serenade" ("about Joe Grant of Tanglefoot playing his fiddle to the churning seas of the Atlantic"), and "Maids of the Morn."
